A Stronghold of Service

ALL the crude oil deposits of the world would be of little value without a practical means of converting them into products suitable for commercial use. To take away the refinery would be to stop the machinery of the world, to restore the conditions of half-a-century ago, and to weigh mankind with fresh burdens.

The cornerstone of the modern oil refinery was laid by the early American refiners whose dogged efforts were rewarded with a clean, fire-burning oil. It has since become a model of standardized industry, fascinating in its processes, and surprising in the efficiency and economy of its organization.

A good example of the American refinery system is the Cleveland plant of this company. In continuous operation since 1871 it is remarkable for the efficiency of its yield. With another refinery at Toledo, it forms the hub of a marketing system which makes Ohio-made fuels and lubricants easily available to all the people of the State.

The leader of the Standard Oil line is Red Crown Gasoline. Red Crown is the "cream" of the refining process—clean and uniform, with the complete chain of boiling points that gives full power at every engine speed and burns up clean to the last drop.

For dependable lubrication—Polarine Oil, Medium and Heavy, Polarine Transmats, Lubricants and Polarine Cap Grease. Fill at the Red Crown Sign—Service Stations and Garages.

UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT IS MADE TO ROB THE GREENUP STATE BANK

An unsuccessful attempt was made to loot the Citizens State Bank, at Greenup, Ky., Monday by unknown bandits. The reports of explosions when the robbers attempted to blow open the vault door were heard by several citizens, who on arising from their beds saw an auto driving east toward Ashland. The alarm was sent out by the Greenup authorities but because of the meagre information regarding the auto and its occupants, their capture was not an easy task.

The attempted robbery was made about 2:30 a. m. and an inspection of the premises later led the officers to believe that the job was planned by amateurs.

Entrance was gained into the bank building by breaking out a panel from the front door. The robbers attempted to blow open the vault door but failed probably because of their inexperience. They then attempted to drill through the concrete wall of the vault, but the charge of ultra-glycerine they placed in the hole failed to make a large enough opening to permit the successful execution of their plans.

Old English Recipe For Catarrh, Catarrhal Discharges and Head Noises

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Discharges, head noises, or ordinary catarrh, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of giving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness, in England specialists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment. Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear, which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate as a constitutional treatment and should prove especially effective to sufferers here who live under more favorable climatic conditions. Recipe from your druggist: 1 ounce of Pareira (dried strength). Take this home and add to it 1/2 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises, catarrhal discharges, head noises, hoarse voice and hearing improves as the catarrh in the middle ear subsides. Rubbed Pareira used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a beneficial effect upon the system. It has a beneficial effect upon the system. AN ALL STAR SENNETT CAST

An Associated Producers Production

Charlie Chaplin, in "Chaplin Classics."

Charlie Chaplin, the world's most famous comedian, is at the Exhibit Theatre for two days, starting tonight, in his funniest two reel comedy "work," in addition to "Marooned Hearts," starring Conway Tearle.

Conway Tearle will be seen at the Exhibit Theatre for the last time in "Marooned Hearts," a great drama of land and sea, and the funniest part of all is Charlie Chaplin in "Work," his funniest two reel comedy.

A new star makes his stellar debut in "Marooned Hearts," the new National Picture which closes a two day engagement at the Exhibit Theatre tonight. Although Conway Tearle has long been considered an attraction by the ardent screen patron, it has remained for Lewis J. Selznick to realize the public mind as to this clever actor's capabilities and to award the honors and advantages due him.

Mr. Tearle appears in a most sympathetic role, that of Paul Carrington, a young doctor, whose entire career it appears is to be sacrificed to satisfy a capricious woman's whims. Mr. Tearle does not make his Paul Carrington a moon-struck and over-dependent weakling, but portrays him as a strong man who has been sadly hurt and who in an effort to forget, takes the best and most course—namely, by plunging himself into hard work that will be of lasting benefit to humanity.

"The woman in the case" is ably depicted by Zena Keefe, and to this capable young actress must go honors almost equal to the stars. While the action of the story calls for the two to meet again on a South Sea island, this situation is developed and handled in a manner so refreshingly new as to make it most interesting.

CHILDREN'S HOME GROUNDS TO BE CONVERTED INTO CITY PARK

Plans for converting the grounds of the Children's Home into an adequate modern and first-class city park will be prepared by a special committee appointed today by Prof. Appel, chairman of the Portsmouth Leisure-Time Committee. Mark W. Selby has accepted the chairmanship of this special committee and has grouped with him Portsmouth men and women whose names are sufficient to guarantee a proper consideration of this important project.

Mr. Selby's committee will be assisted in its preparation of plans by N. A. Fisk, of Community Service, who will be in the city today and tomorrow in conference with the special park committee. Mr. Fisk has had eighteen years experience as a park architect and park superintendent. He was for a time in charge of the West Chicago Park System. He is associate editor of Parks and Recreation, the official journal of the American Association of Park Superintendents. He is on the staff of Community Service as a park planning expert and aids various cities in developing their park properties.

It will be remembered that the program of leisure-time activities adopted by the Portsmouth Leisure-Time Committee included the adequate development of the grounds of the Children's Home into a real city park, one of the most modern lines, a park which can serve as a real recreation center for the rapidly growing population of Portsmouth. The appointment of the special committee and the conference with Mr. Fisk are the means taken by the Leisure-Time Committee to carry out the desire of the people of this city as indicated by the inclusion of this project in the leisure time program.

The committee appointed today by Prof. Appel will shortly have its plans complete for submission to the public. These plans will cover the work to be done through a number of years. Part of this work can be commenced at once by the Bureau of Community Service, which stands ready to help this important civic project to the extent of its powers.

While the committee engaged on preparing these plans is only a committee of public-spirited citizens who wish to see the city's recently acquired property made to serve the whole people, and while it has no official status as a part of the city government, it is believed that the city government will recognize the disinterested service of Mr. Selby and his associates and take full advantage of the plans which they will present. The rapidly increasing population of this city makes it of great importance that the grounds of the Children's Home be placed in proper condition as early as possible. The children will shortly move. The grounds will then be completely available. Many groups of citizens can utilize them for recreation purposes. If certain immediate necessities are met. To meet these necessities with all possible celerity is the task of the following leading citizens of Portsmouth who are members of this special committee: Mark W. Selby, chairman; Mrs. Arthur H. Bannan, Ralph Murring, Miss Leona Labold, Mrs. Joseph

Mr. Harsha Brings "Evidence" Home From Florida To Prove He Is Real Fisherman

As evidence that he is some fisherman, Mr. H. Harsha, who with his wife and two children, just home from Florida where they spent a delightful winter, he brought the head home of a big mouth black bass which tipped the beam at 10 1/2 pounds. It was one of the largest bass ever caught near Portsmouth, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Harsha motored home in their Essex car and had no trouble whatever, covering the distance of 1100 miles in seven days. They found the roads good and bad but in the main they were very good. They came over the famous Guntur Mountain at Gunturville, Ga., and found the road in wretched condition. The mountain is very steep and Mr. Harsha said the driving at times was ticklish, but he got over it in splendid shape. He came home by way of Gainesville, Florida, Atlanta, Rome, Ga., Gadsden, Gunturville and Huntsville, Ala., Springfield, and Nashville, Tenn., Bowling Green, Ohio, Louisville, Maryland, and then into Portsmouth by way of Aberdeen.

Just before leaving Florida Mr. Harsha says he hooked an eight foot alligator with his spinner, but the line snapped and it got away.

Progressive Ohio Valley Bank Has Most Complete New Burglar Alarm System

The new burglar alarm system recently purchased by the progressive officials of the Ohio Valley Bank, is now in operation. The installation work having been completed Wednesday by Mr. Edwin Christianson, expert mechanic sent here by the American Bank Protective Company of Minneapolis, builders of the system. The protection resulting to the bank is claimed to be the best that human ingenuity can devise and the American Protective Company says that in twenty years the system has not been beaten by burglars, although every conceivable way has been tried.

The system is extremely simple of operation requiring almost no attention from the banker and yet is so complete that no one part of the vault or doors has a single form of protection, the protection on all parts either in duplicate or triplicate, both the open and closed circuits being used, so that any attempt to cut cables or wires, drill through the vault lining or doors or the use of the oxy-acetylene flame would immediately turn in an alarm.

The alarm consists of two inch bronze metal bells in shields located just above or beside the vault doors and a 20 inch 55 pound bronze gong in a housing located above the front of the building on Chillicothe street.

Under favorable conditions it is said this bell has been heard three miles away and under normal conditions it can be heard several blocks in any direction.

The vault itself is protected on the inside with a double steel plate lining for the open circuit with a continuous grid of tin-foil strips for the closed circuit this lining covering the vault floor, ceiling, walls, doors and vestibules, not a square inch being left unprotected. The doors themselves are controlled by time-clocks which automatically switch the current on and off the doors for closing and opening at such time as the banker may have set them for. The clocks (located inside the vault) will give the banker warning twenty minutes before time to lock up by ringing a small bell on the switchboard and always "lock the vault door." The banker cannot go away at night and leave vault doors open or unlocked for the doors must be closed, bolts thrown and the combination turned off. Should he neglect to do any one of these things the clock will turn in an alarm at the time set for closing.

The system has its own energy, not depending on any outside source, and these batteries are contained on the inside of the vault as is everything connected with the system except the three big alarm bells, and any tampering with these bells or housing wires will turn in an alarm.

In connection with the vault protection there is also installed a day-light holdup alarm protection system which makes it possible for the banker even with his hands in the air, to turn in any alarm from almost any part of the banking room.

The system insures the bank the lowest rate of burglary insurance obtainable and the same is inspected at regular intervals so that it may be kept in absolute working order at all times.

The installation of the burglar alarm system is but one of many forward steps taken by the management of the Ohio Valley Bank during the past few years, all of which are reflected on the steady growth and prosperity of the business of the bank.

COURT HOUSE

Berry Seeks Divorce
William Berry, mine foreman in Kanawha county, W. Va., where he is now temporarily domiciled, charges neglect and infidelity in his suit for divorce from Ida Berry, of this city, instituted in Common Pleas court Tuesday.

He says they were married at Charleston, W. Va., March 17, 1911, and in his bill of complaint filed through Attorney Geo. M. Osborn, the plaintiff alleges the defendant refused to accompany him to West Virginia in compliance with her marital duties when he secured employment there last August. He further declares that she neglected him for the association of other men and asserts that she displayed or expressed no affection for him for two years prior to her refusal to accompany him to West Virginia and that she habitually used vile and opprobrious language and called him scurrilous and abusive names.

Wife Alleges Cruelty
Alleging cruelty and declaring that he seized her over the head with a milk bottle inflicting a painful wound, Golda M. Kirshberger, who conducts a restaurant at Grace and Vine streets, New Boston, seeks a divorce and alimony, with custody of their one minor child, in an action instituted Tuesday in Common Pleas court against George A. Kirshberger, 822 Chillicothe street.

In her petition filed through Attorney George W. Sheppard the plaintiff says they were married July 30, 1918, and then she complains that Kirshberger has cursed and abused her, struck and beat her and on various occasions has threatened her life. She claims. She further says they have been conducting a restaurant at New Boston and that the income from the business is the only means she has of supporting herself and child.

A temporary injunction was allowed restraining the defendant from molesting or interfering with the restaurant and tying up his funds in bank, pending the final hearing of the case on its merits.

Riggs Acquitted

"Not Guilty" was the verdict of the jury in the paternity case of Ethel Mae Hatfield against Roy Riggs, which was tried in Common Pleas court Monday afternoon. The jury brought in its verdict after deliberating on the case 30 minutes.

The complainant told the jury that Riggs was the father of her three months old infant and the child was an interesting exhibit in the case. The accused, strenuously denied the charge and contended that another young man of the neighborhood was the father of the child. The evidence was extremely conflicting and the verdict indicates that the jury took the view of the defense.

Attorney T. C. Beatty for the plaintiff and Attorneys R. F. Kimble and W. L. Hestetter appeared for the defendant.

Trountman Convicted

Jacob Trountman, 71 years old, New Boston junk dealer, was convicted of a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Julia Seaguz, 12 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Seaguz of New Boston in Juvenile court Tuesday and Judge Gilliland imposed a penalty of three months in jail and a fine of $20 and costs. The girl was adjudged a delinquent and made a ward of the court and sent home with her mother who was charged with contributing to the delinquency of her child but the proof did not support the complaint and it was dismissed.

The evidence disclosed that Trountman induced the little girl to visit him at his home on various occasions by giving her money and there was testimony adduced tending to show that the accused attempted to molest the child. The defendant persistently denied the charge.

clared he was innocent of any wrong doing in connection with his association with the girl and asserted that her statements on that score were untrue. He was represented by Attorneys Harry Miller and T. C. Beatty and Attorney A. C. Woodrow appeared for Mrs. Seaguz.

Made Ward of Court

Bernon Manning, 18 years old, son of Mrs. Jennie Manning, 112 Boundary street, was found guilty on a delinquency complaint in Juvenile court of playing hooky from school and Judge Gilliland Friday made him a ward of the court and ordered him to pay the costs of prosecution.

The youth was brought into court on the complaint of Attendance Officer John A. Lloyd.

Adopts Grandchild

Clara Ruth Bowles, 3 years old, has been legally adopted with the approval of the probate court by her grandmother, Rachel C. Mustard of Rarden. The mother of the child is dead and the father, Mark Bowles, of Rarden, gave his consent to the adoption and changing the child's name to Mustard.

Suit Will Be Tried Over

The suit of Thomas Nichols against W. B. Boring will come to trial for the second time before Judge Thomas and a jury in Common Pleas court Wednesday morning.

The suit grew out of a collision between the automobiles of the parties which occurred at the intersection of Fifth and Brown streets in November 1919 and the plaintiff sued on a claim for $432.80 damages to his machine which was considerably wrecked in the smash up. On the former hearing the jury awarded him a verdict for $307.80 but the verdict was set aside and a new trial granted.

Attorney R. F. Kimble for plaintiff and Attorneys Blair and Blair for Boring will convene at eight o'clock on Wednesday morning, May 11, at which time, and those interested including witnesses, are requested to govern themselves accordingly and be present in court at the new hour for starting the proceedings.

Hills Make Up

The parties to the divorce suit of Wesley Hill against Lorraine Hill having kissed and made up an entry dismissing the action was filed in the office of the clerk of courts Tuesday.

Cases Dismissed

An approved entry was filed in the office of the clerk of courts Tuesday dismissing the suit of the F. S. Hyster-Guano company against Walter and Wheeler, merchants at Minford, the case having been settled.

An entry was also filed dismissing the suit of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance company against O. E. Ruhlman, which has been amicably settled out of court.

To Settle Land Dispute

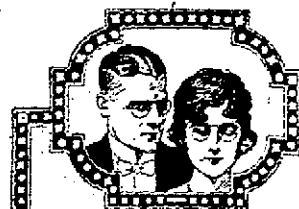

An action to settle a dispute over a line between their premises situated in the Kehoe addition, Wheelersburg, was brought by Andrew Hitts against John Sturgill in Common Pleas court Tuesday.

In his petition filed through Attorney Mark Crawford the plaintiff says that he and the defendant are the owners of adjoining lots on Mary street and then complains that Sturgill on or about April 25, 1921, began to trespass and interfere with his possession of his lot by plowing up the land and threatening to put out crops thereon. He further says that he has tried to establish the line but that the defendant has removed the stakes set and continues to trespass on the premises to the damage of the plaintiff.

A temporary injunction was allowed preventing the defendant from going on the lands in question until a judicial survey for which he applies, can be made and the proper line established.

Bill, passed by the General Assembly, which makes changes in taking the enumeration of school youth and he urges the desirability of taking the school census in May on the new basis instead of waiting until the middle of August as was the custom under the old arrangement.

Under the old law youths between the age of 6 to 21 were enumerated and under the new law this has been changed to include all youths from five to eighteen years old.

In compliance with the notice Auditor Coburn requests all Boards of Education in the various school districts throughout the county to take the school census as provided for under the new law which is as follows:

"For the purpose of the apportionment of the Common school fund the enumeration shall mean in the case of every enumeration subsequent to the going into effect of this section the enumeration of children from five to eighteen years of age; and in the year 1921 if the enumeration is not taken in May on this new basis the enumeration shall be taken in the four weeks following the date when this section shall become effective and the dates of the required reports shall be correspondingly altered."

Hadn't The Pep To Get

Up And Dress, He Said

But the Old Reliable Builder, Nerv-Worth, Soon Restored His Vigor

It is useless to give up hope and surrender to depressed feelings when Nerv-Worth will build you up so quickly. Proof that it will do this is found in hundreds of statements from satisfied users, one of which, written by J. E. Wilson, West Poplar St., Sydney, Ohio, says: "I had nervous indigestion, and couldn't sleep at night. I would wake up in the morning so tired and listless that I hardly had enough pep to get on my clothes. I have used Nerv-Worth only two weeks, and I am greatly improved. At this time of your many people feel depressed and feel the need of a tonic. If the reader feels that way, let him choose Nerv-Worth for his tonic. If, after you have taken your first bottle, you are not pleased, your druggist is authorized to refund your money. Nerv-Worth is sold and recommended by Fisher & Streich. — Adv.

and whether or not it pleases the "irreconcilable" element is something that should be by force of circumstances made a secondary consideration. President Harding naturally wanted the complete support of "his party" but in cases of division he must rely upon public opinion. The feeling in executive quarters is that the country is back of Mr. Harding in his efforts to bring about a return of normal business conditions. He is still as insistent as ever that the course of our government will be so carefully steered that involvement in European political tangles will be avoided. But against those who claim that the participation in allied councils is a step toward the entry of the United States into the League of Nations, the answer made that for the present the Harding administration is looking at things purely from an economic basis. Reduce taxes, for instance, there must be more revenue available from more sources. To make the American people better able to pay their taxes they must be in a position to make money. To make money, they must have besides their domestic markets a place to sell their goods abroad. To sell profitably they must put their products within the reach of the foreign purchaser. Until international exchange is stabilized, would-be European purchasers cannot buy. That's the cycle of present-day economy and the Harding administration is trying by every means possible to bring about a stabilization of international exchange, which, it is expected, would be followed by a revival of export trade and the reopening of American factories that now are shut down.

Making Germany Pay Good Business

The Harding administration believes that the policy of making the Germans pay their debt is good business policy for America, that the assistance given the allies by stinging in their councils prevents any excess that America herself is preventing the allies from paying the ten billions of dollars they owe the United States. Several business policy—not politics—is back of the Harding policy and that's why Mr. Hughes, in the Department of State and Mr. Hoover, in the Department of Commerce, who are most concerned with foreign trade, are considered the chief influences in the situation that behind them is the practically unanimous sentiment of the cabinet—the Secretary of the Treasury, who feels that business will be revived when European questions are settled, the Vice president, who in a public speech said the prosperity of America was dependent to a large extent on the settlement of international questions, the Secretary of Agriculture who wants to see foreign markets for the farmer's produce and so on all along the line. It's business and not party politics.

the relationship and will not consider any transference of the foreign debt from the allies to the backs of the Germans but nevertheless the Washington government is not ignoring the relationship of Germany's payments to the capacity of the allies to pay America.

Had To Help Allies Get Money Back

The Harding administration considered seriously the embarrassing position in which America would be placed if she declined to use her moral force alongside the Allies when Germany made her proposal to mollify. If the United States had taken a position which the allies believed was encouraging the Germans to evade their obligations, it might have resulted in a sentiment among the allied governments to the effect that America had correspondingly prevented the allies from meeting their obligations. To collect from the allies in other words, it was necessary for America to help the allies get their money from Germany.

Brown Is Fined $100

When Burris Hale and R. Brown, who were taken into custody late Sunday night on charges of unlawfully transporting and possessing intoxicating liquor, appeared in Municipal court Monday they admitted guilt and Judge Sprague passed Hale's case for a fine of $100, which was suspended pending good behavior on recommendation of Judge Blair representing the state. James Holley, the third member of the trio captured, is held at the county jail for the penitentiary authorities for violating the terms of his parole and an officer is expected to come in a day or two to return the prisoner to the big prison at the capital. Holley was sentenced on his plea of guilty to a non-support indictment. When apprehended the trio had 14 gallons of high proof moonshine liquor in an automobile which was driven by Brown.

HYPHEN AND HYPHENATE

NATIONAL Commander Galbraith of the American Legion in a recent statement scathingly denounced the "hyphen and the hyphenate." It was one of those verbal lashings that delight the souls of men of one country.

Among other things he said:
The hyphen, realizing that it was an ally of our enemy, promptly took cover. The hyphen dug in and hid its head and, so long as the roar of battle sounded, it maintained an exceedingly low visibility.

Then there was an armistice, which signified that the danger was over; and with the passing of danger, the hyphen crept back slowly into view. Finally, it became bold and asserted itself with its old arrogance.

Could Mr. Galbraith have had in mind only those miserable creatures who enjoy the liberty of America to exploit the fortunes of some other country, or might he also have meant those distinguished professors of Americanism who for the sake of politics in the last campaign tilted their appeals to the racial prejudices of the German-American, the Sinn Féiner and those others who vowed to get vengeance upon a president who, standing up for America, was accused of imaginary wrongs to other countries?

It is difficult to detect the difference between the two breeds, the one deliberately undermining the faith of the people in their own government in favor of a foreign power or the other appealing to these national prejudices, aiding and abetting this un-American propaganda for the votes it might bring to their candidate. The hyphen, as Commander Galbraith says, is not the only one that "dug in and hid its head and so long as the roar of battle sounded maintained an exceedingly low visibility." There were others in whom the hyphen found comfort and hope.

These were the politicians of high and low degree who did not hesitate to join hands with the un-American cause for the sake of the political profit it would bring.

KEEPING THE FAITH

MOST American citizens have confidence in the future of the United States; only a few are pessimistic to the point of believing or pretending to believe that we shall never get back to normalcy.

Eventually the clouds overhanging the business world will disappear. Behind them the sun, symbolic of normal business conditions, is shining. National resources will have little to do with the adoption of an optimistic attitude. Past experience teaches us that every depression has been followed by good business. This statement of fact may be better than a volume of arguments. We must never allow ourselves to lose hope in the future of this country. Our wealth has scarcely been scratched. We are a mighty people, and the next 10 years should witness an industrial expansion, bringing to all prosperity transcending any former decade.

If more Americans were manifesting their faith in the substantial character of the resources of this country and its great future there would be less opportunity for the pessimism just now hanging so heavily over some quarters.

THE REBOUND MUST COME

W. J. G. HARDING can find statistical support for his statement that the very violence of the recent business reaction is evidence that a speedy recovery will follow. There was never a more violent panic in this country than the 1907 money panic and yet it passed away so rapidly that communities which escaped the first impact knew only dimly and by hearsay that anything had gone wrong.

In the present situation, however, nothing so evanescent as that can reasonably be expected. This country may expect the improvement which is now appearing to continue, but no sort of magic will suddenly replace the losses due to war. Patience, statesmanship and the healing processes of time will be required to bring the world all the way back to a period of settled prosperity and the United States must expect to get along with something less than a maximum of activity until the situation on the other side of the Atlantic improves.

But, taking the world as it is, this country has much to be thankful for and has a better outlook than any other of the great industrial nations.

A MODERN CONSTITUTION

POLAND'S new constitution is thoroughly modern. It follows the French rather than the United States political model, but it has also much that is peculiar to this country in its religious freedom, universal compulsory education, public school system and universal suffrage.

There is provided a bicameral legislature, all elective; a president elected for seven years; a ministry responsible to the legislative majority and after the French method the president is elected by the legislative houses in joint session.

Poland starts well as an independent government.

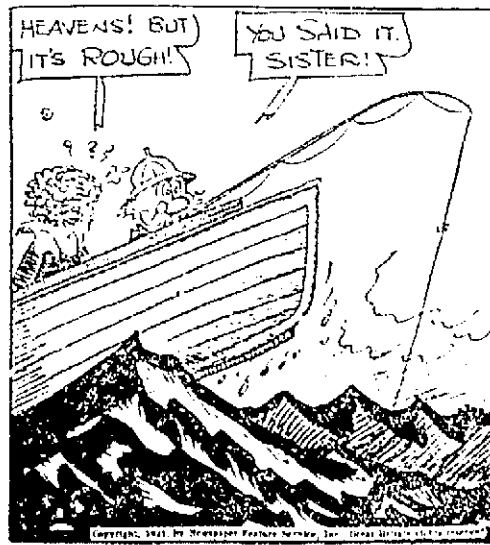

The Milwaukee brewers who announce that they have real beer on hand ready to service for medicinal purposes are firm believers in preparedness.

The federal trade commission says a way must be found to bring down fuel and rent costs, but it will be noticed that it doesn't make any suggestions.

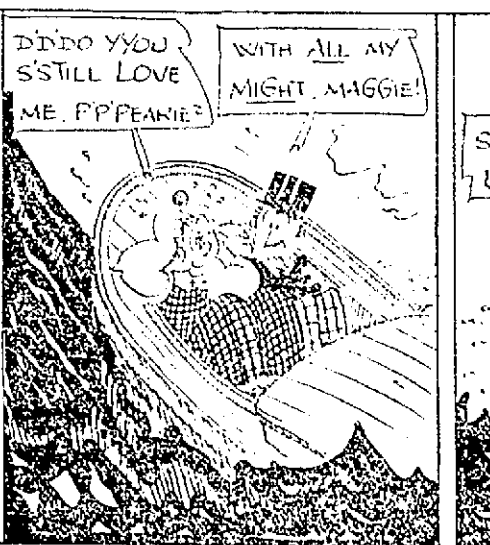

Postal employees in the middle west have been armed with shotguns, the belief apparently being that a dead mail robber is worth a half-dozen live ones.

Something besides a few square miles and a capital, is required to constitute a going nation, as some European countries are learning.

POLLY AND HER PALS

Sea-Sick On An Ocean of Love, As It Were

Disarming A Nation

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10.—A measure which would make it difficult for any citizen of the United States to obtain a revolver or pistol without breaking the law is now proposed by Senator Shields, of Tennessee as a remedy for the crime wave.

It is agreed by all that something must be done. The country is overrun by armed thugs who shoot down a few hundred citizens every day, take their cash and jewelry, and escape in four-thousand-dollar cars which they have stolen from other citizens without much trouble.

Senator Shields believes that the way to remedy this situation is to make it as difficult as possible for any one to obtain a revolver, pistol or other firearm small enough to be concealed about the person, and he has introduced a bill which is to accomplish this by barring such arms from interstate commerce. The stated purpose of the bill is to "suppress the sale of pistols, revolvers," etc., etc.—that is, to make it as difficult as possible for any one, criminal or otherwise, to obtain such an arm.

This bill has provoked sharp discussion. Many legislators favor it. On the other hand, students of the crime problem say that it will be wholly ineffective. Some critics of the measure say that it is typical of a whole school of legislation in this country, designed to suppress vice and crime, and which has the opposite effect.

Senator Shields says that his measure is modeled after the prohibition law. Prohibition, he says, was ineffective as a state or local measure as long as liquor could be manufactured in neighboring states and shipped into dry territory. In like manner, he says, the efforts of police to control the sale of firearms in a given city are futile as long as any criminal can send away and get a revolver by mail or express.

His opponents say that his whole theory is unsound. They agree with him that his law is of exactly the same type as the prohibition law, and they assert that, while prohibition has reduced the consumption of alcohol, which may be a good thing, it has not prevented any man who really wants alcohol from getting it. He can get it from bootleggers. Furthermore, here in Washington, one of the most orderly of cities, he can buy a slightly medicated port wine containing 18 percent of alcohol at many small stores, and he can buy all the materials for making home brew at several places, together with all directions for the making. The effect of this law, they contend, has been to restrict the consumption by making it inconvenient to obtain alcoholic beverages, but it has not made it impossible for the man with an abnormal alcoholic thirst to satisfy it.

Will Not Affect Criminals.
In like manner, they say, the prohibition law will greatly reduce the number of persons owning weapons by making it difficult to obtain them, but it will never prevent the man who really needs one from getting it. There will inevitably be bootlegging in guns just as there is now bootlegging in whiskey. A whole new class of criminals who engage in this traffic will be created, just as bootlegging has created a class of criminals. And the tax payer will be saddled with another burden of expense in the effort to enforce this law. It will also mean the possible citizen, but it will never prevent the criminal who needs the gun in his business, from getting one. He is used to getting things by theft and craft. He is well acquainted in the underworld. He will get a gun under gun prohibition just as easily as he gets liquor under liquor prohibition. The law-abiding citizen will be disarmed by such legislation, but not the professional criminal.

Take, for example, they say, a group of 100 citizens. Perhaps 20 or more of these never thought of owning a gun. Perhaps about 20 of them have purchased guns which they keep in bureau drawers for personal protection. Many a burglar and highway man has been followed by an armed citizen. The keeping of arms in the home, for self-protection on is a recognized and valuable aid in the suppression of crime. If there were a loaded revolver in every bed room in the country, with a person who had been properly trained in the use of it, burglary would be greatly discouraged.

In this 100 men there are perhaps 10 who own revolvers as means of recreation. They are members of target-shooting clubs which encourage civic duty with small arms, or they are men who make camping trips in wild country and carry side arms with them.

How It Would Work.
Not more than three, probably, of this 100 men are criminals. Now the effect of a law like the Shields bill, say its opponents, is to disarm this entire 100 men in the hope of disarming the three criminal members. The 97 who would otherwise live revolvers for self-defense will be discouraged from doing so by the expense and risk of prevention. Then men who use their weapons as means of recreation, and who are valuable for their skill in case of war, will be more reluctant to give up, but they too are law-abiding men and do not like to follow a hobby which involves contempt of law.

The only men of the hundred who will completely and gladly disregard the law are the three criminals. They habitually disregard law anyway. They are experts in breaking it. Their lives depend upon the ownership of guns. It is almost certain that they will succeed in obtaining them. And they will be the holder in the use of them by reason of knowing that their intended victims have been disarmed.

These men argue that the way to prevent the abuse of any privilege or right is not to take it away from everybody, but to take it away from the man who abuses it—not to deprive the 97 law-abiding citizens of their rights, but to make it hot for the three crooks.

This is not being done, they say. Our police systems have come in for so much criticism lately that it is hardly necessary to repeat any of it. Unsolved murder and theft mysteries are the order of the day. Our criminal law is a notorious farce. The statement is made by high authorities that a man is seldom convicted of murder in this country if he has plenty of money or a political pull. The way to stop murder is to catch and punish the murderers, and the way to disarm criminals is to catch them and take their arms away from them, argue these opponents of the prohibition principle.

If there is to be any Federal legislation bearing on the crime wave, these men say, it should have for its purpose the creation of a Federal police bureau. This is badly needed to act as a clearing house for information about criminals, to raise the standards of police work in America, and to study European police methods with a view to introducing them in this country.

New-York-Day-By-Day

NEW YORK, May 9.—Little Jack Cogan honored me with a personal call the other morning. If you are a patron of the silver sheet you know Jackie for at the tender age of six he has had fame that comes to few in a life time. His salary is staggering. In a very short time he became as famous as Charlie Chaplin and Mary Pickford.

He came to my quarters with Paul Gray, who is a sort of Major Domo attached to the Cogan organization for indeed Jackie has a business manager, several secretaries who send out pictures to admirers, a personal valet and a personal physician.

The little chap had just recovered from an illness due to the heavy demands upon his time by his first visit to Manhattan. He was followed about the streets, trailed by an array of reporters and photographers and generally floundered wherever he went.

He appeared more interested in my dog than any other member of the household and the dog, who has not the slightest sense of proportion, immediately secured a towel and engaged Jackie in a romp that left them both panting.

Jackie is just a little bewildered by it all. He has to appear very proper and I imagine he would enjoy a mud pie baking party as relief from his constant association with grown ups. Those who watch out for his safety find it most difficult to keep Jackie from being gorged with candy and cake which is perhaps best for him but rather distressing for a boy of his age.

I asked him if he liked moving pictures—a banal question indeed—but Jackie replied: "Yes, it's lots of fun." He also found amusement in a cartoon book.

One cannot help but have a feeling of sympathy for the lad despite the success he has achieved. There is something about his wistful expression that gives one the idea that he is rather tired of it all. He is guarded like a princeling cut off from the companionship so essential to boyhood and basks in a reflected glory that he little understands.

At a prominent club in the Forties a "lollypop party" was given to a number of distinguished visitors to the city. At each table were four "lollypops" encased in tissue paper with the wooden stems and everything. It soon became noted about that there were more to the lollypops than their innocent appearance indicated. Unwrapped they proved to be little glass vials and the stems served as a straw through which guests might imbibe something suspiciously like dry Martini—a concoction that was in high favor along Broadway a few years ago. A pleasant time was had by all.

Quite a number of readers have demanded an explanation of my being in California one Saturday and in New York the following Monday. They based their conclusion on this line, "The truth is that the California articles were written from notes after my return to New York and when I came to the return trip I found it so uneventful that there was nothing to write about. So that's that."

Strange marital attractions are revealed each day. A prominent theatrical player has announced that eight years ago when her name was emblazoned in lights on Broadway she married a bell boy who answered the calls to her rooms. One might speculate upon a lot of things happening to the husband. Money to start in his own business. A job as manager for his wife. But nothing like this happened. He is still a bellboy and she has divorced him.

Business in Every Life

The man business has come in common speech to mean almost exclusively the financial, trade, mercantile and industrial occupations. Business enters more or less into the affairs of all men because it has to do with buying, selling, saving, investing, borrowing, lending, and all transactions involving the use and care of money.

Whatever a man's occupation, he has constant need of business sense and training, and should understand its principles and absorb its wisdom, else the rewards he reaps from his work are likely to be lost or misapplied. The great profession is now far in advance of all others in the appreciation of the necessity for mastery of business principles. This was not true fifty years ago, when business called for a lawyer only when it got in trouble. But when the development of business corporations touched every city, and the men united their financial resources into great units, business purposes, the lawyers began to be employed to keep business out of trouble rather than to rescue it from trouble. Then lawyers had to acquire business sense.

A man may be a good doctor, teacher, farmer, scientist or carpenter, and remain sadly inefficient in his business affairs, unable to care for his earnings and an easy mark for sharpers. But he can no longer be a good lawyer if ignorant of business, because the legal profession is now principally engaged in matters which involve money and property. The dollar has become the one necessity of life.

The investments of preachers and other professional men, to say nothing of widows and many men who should know better, have long been the disaster of the world. They are usually saved them from loss. People who know nothing of business are easily misled by promoters of worthless stock and hazardous enterprise, because they believe business men can do anything with money. When a pirate comes along with promises of enormous profits they see riches on the morrow which never comes.

We would not exalt business beyond its deserts, but when it has so much to do with every life, it should be taught its fundamental principles. Because so many are grossly ignorant of them, adventurers thrive at their expense.

B. CARROLL REECE

B. Carroll Reece, new member of Congress from the first district of Tennessee, is the first man in that body who owes his nomination and election to the Boy Scouts. Reece is only twenty-eight years old. He went to New York several years ago to get a business education and was a student at Phillipsburg. He went overseas with an infantry regiment and came back quite a hero in his home state.

Two of Mr. Reece's brothers run a store at Butler, Tenn., and the representative went back there for a rest and to go into business. About that time the Boy Scout movement was going strong in that part of Tennessee and last summer he organized a camp of scouts at which he gave some lectures or talks on civil government. The scouts went through many of the forms of government, including the nomination of men for various offices. They held a "convention" of their own and nominated Reece for congress from that district.

Some of the Republican leaders in the district heard of the action of the scouts and got the cue from them. They talked the matter over with Reece, decided he would make a good candidate against Sam R. Sells, then holding the office, and put him on the ticket. He won.

Par he it from us to spoil one moment of joy for the young people who enter matrimony, but the thought to us that this is a singularly appropriate time in which to reduce the high cost of weddings. Another person planning to expend a thousand or five thousand dollars on the marriage of a son or daughter might well cut out the finest and dimmest contemplated, and invest that would thus be spent and lost in some stable dividend producing investment in the name of the loved one.

A few happy might be achieved, a few families fall of gratification, a few social pleasures marred, if parents of sons and daughters should get together, join their efforts in a sound investment, and insist on a simple wedding. We have not a doubt that such a policy would bring more lasting and solid pleasure to the couple most concerned than a "brilliant" wedding and costly honeymoon, spending with dollars gone never to return. An income from a permanent investment, however small, is always worth while. A desire to increase it will promote economy, and economy is going to be necessary in this country for some years to come.

Lovers of love-making on the screen are never disappointed when Geraldine Farrar and Lou Tellegen are together in a play.

It is not the time a man gives his employer, but the service he renders, which should control his wages. The country saw that fact when organized labor, in the midst of war, shorter hours and excessive wages deliberately slowed down production.

No system or organization on earth will ever be able permanently to exalt behavior in the job above honest service.

Unlucky Doctor.
The Chinese have a strong sense of humor. This joke, told by a writer to the "Open Court," will bring a smile to almost any face: There was a doctor who understood so little of his profession that every now and then he killed one of his patients. He had a son and a daughter. One day he had sent the son of a family to the other world, and since the family was much dissatisfied he gave them his own son in compensation. Subsequently he had the misfortune to dispatch the daughter of another couple and was obliged to give them his own daughter to make good the loss. They were now alone with his wife. They were feeling lonely and miserable one evening, when again some one knocked at the door and asked for the doctor. He went out himself and inquired of the man who it was that needed him. The man said that it was his wife. The poor doctor went back into his room and, shedding tears, said to his wife: "I see it coming. There must be somebody who has cast an eye on you."
